

FACULTY OF PUBLIC HEALTH

LEGACY GIFTS

You've already specialised in the bigger picture – broaden the horizons further by considering a legacy gift to the Faculty of Public Health.

The Faculty of Public Health (FPH) is your professional body as a specialist in public health. As a registered charity, FPH does not make a profit and is reliant on membership subscriptions and grants in order to pursue its vision of helping to ensure the world's population achieves and maintains its fullest potential for health and wellbeing. Leaving FPH a legacy will help us pursue this aim through our education, standard setting and advocacy roles.

International development

Help FPH build public health capacity in developing countries. Your legacy can help develop our programme of FPH collaborations and partnerships, as well develop policy, advocacy and practical tools or initiatives that promote the global public health knowledge content in the training curriculum.

Education

Your legacy will help us take our work forward in ensuring the highest standards of public health education both nationally and internationally. We believe that our vision can only be achieved through ensuring that the leadership of public health is strong, our standards in public health are quality assured and the workforce is well-trained.

Campaigning and information

FPH works to raise awareness of public health issues in the government, other agencies, the NHS and among the public. We work both alone and in collaboration on issues like obesity, smoking cessation, alcohol and climate change. FPH is leading the way on climate change with the publication of Sustaining a Healthy Future, aimed at cutting carbon footprint of the NHS. Your legacy can make a big difference in our ability to keep advising, publishing and lobbying on the issues at the heart of public health and wellbeing and make a difference for the future.

Professionalism and Standards

FPH has a statutory role in quality assuring public health. Your gift helps FPH ensure that our advisers, CPD co-ordinators and other public health leaders are well trained, supported and confident in their ability to drive the profession forward.

LEGACY GIFTS

How you can leave a legacy

Of course, family and friends will be your priority but after making provision for them, FPH would be delighted if you would consider supporting FPH in your will.

You should contact your solicitor and can either choose to add specific wording to your will, if you have not already made one, or to update your current will using a codicil.

Please remember to use FPH's unique charity number when writing in your gift: 263894

Types of legacy you might want to consider:

Residuary legacy

This is a gift of the remainder of your estate after all other bequests are made and any taxes and other administration expenses are cleared.

Model wording for a residual gift:

I give (%) of the residue of my estate to The Faculty of Public Health of the Royal Colleges of Physicians of the United Kingdom, 4 St Andrews Place, London NW1 4LB (registered charity no 263894) for the general purposes of the charity and the receipt of the proper officer for the time being of the charity shall be sufficient discharge for my Executors.

Pecuniary legacy

This is a gift of a fixed sum of money stated at the time you make the will.

Model wording for a pecuniary gift:

I give the sum of (X) to The Faculty of Public Health of the Royal Colleges of Physicians of the United Kingdom, 4 St Andrews Place, London NW1 4LB (registered charity no 263894) for the general purposes of the charity and the receipt of the proper officer for the time being of the charity shall be sufficient discharge for my Executors.

Specific legacy

This is a gift of a named item such as a painting, building or land.

Contingent legacy

This is a gift which is dependent on a specific event which may, or may not, occur.

Life interest/Reversionary bequest

This is a gift which is the right to enjoy either a property or the proceeds of an investment until either death or the case of some reversionary event.

Gift in remainder

An organisation such as the FPH may benefit from a property once a life tenant has died and the property reverts, for example.

Letting FPH know

If you are thinking of leaving a gift in your will to FPH or if you have already made provision, then thank you very much.

We recognise that this is a very personal gift and promise to put your bequest to good use. It would also help us to know about your gift. This will enable us to plan for the future, enable us to thank you properly and involve you more in the life of your professional organisation.

If you could fill in this brief form and return it to us we would be very appreciative.

I want to support the work of the Faculty of Public Health and have left/am considering leaving a gift in my will
