NICE's new international strategy outlines two important and overarching ambitions. These are to contribute to improvements in health and care outcomes across the world, and to establish collaborative international relationships. I see both as key contributions to our country's aspirations to support improvements in health and social care both at home and globally.

	be the responsible organisations for the following part of the project: 2) Contribute to strategy development of a mentoring and training programme for public health staff capacity development in LMICs using the Peoples-Praxis initiative as the platform. Objectives may include; <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Collaborate with Datasphir in the implementation of the new mentoring platform including its formal evaluation.</li> <li>- Review e-courses currently provided by Peoples-Praxis, and gain familiarity with the way in which online courses can be used for global health capacity building.</li> <li>- Review courses offered by IAPH in collaboration with the Yemen FPH SIG to identify other courses needed (including languages)</li> <li>- Develop an e- course on Health Technology Assessment (TA) for an international audience (with the help of Prof Heller and NICE International staff)</li> <li>- Continue to recruit mentors and mentees, working with country leads to establish and support appropriate partnerships</li> <li>- Submit abstracts to appropriate for a (e.g. WCE Cape Town) to promote the work of Peoples-Praxis</li> </ul>
